

Hand fabrication allows production of prototypes

Precision Metal Components (PMC) performs close-tolerance hand fabrication to allow small manufacturers to offer short production runs and new products.

Hand fabrication provides an alternative to preproduction tooling and gives companies requiring specialized shapes, bends, or notches the ability to manufacture cases or other enclosures quickly. In addition, hand fabrication provides the means to produce prototypes and prequalifying components for first-article approval.

Write 49 on reply card